Vallejo Police Department Cell Site Simulator (CSS) Deployment Log Calendar Year 2026

The Vallejo Police Department recognizes the public interest in ensuring that cell site simulator technology is appropriately used and monitored and seeks to be transparent with its usage. Please note that the cell site simulator is merely an investigative tool to find a cell phone. Results from the cell site simulator alone are never used establish probable cause for an arrest or search.

A deployment is defined as any time the cell site simulator is turned on and used to find a target phone. The cell site simulator might be deployed several times to find the same phone even if previously successfully located. Each deployment in the log is not necessarily a separate phone that was searched for. An arrest is not necessarily effected even if a phone is located. There are many factors that determine when and arrest will be effected.

Authorized Purpose Codes:

- (A) Locate missing persons
- (B) Locate at-risk individuals
- (C) Locate victims of mass casualty incidents
- (D) Assist in felony investigations
- (E) Apprehend fugitives

In the event a search warrant is (N) NOT obtained due to special circumstances, an explanation will be provided in a separate attachment*

Key takeaways

- Out-of-state agencies with ICE connections, such as the Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission and Texas Department of Public Safety, ran searches through Cleveland. See more

Audit logs don't lie, but they sure can embarrass. Cleveland officials spent months assuring residents that their Flock cameras network couldn't be used for immigration enforcement—right up until records revealed 163 immigration-related searches hitting the city's system between December 28 and January 27. The searches appeared weeks after Cleveland supposedly activated an "immigration filter" designed to block exactly this type of access.

Out-of-State Agencies Accessed Cleveland Network

Texas and Florida agencies with ICE connections ran searches through Cleveland's cameras despite local protections.

The problematic queries came primarily from agencies outside Ohio, including the Florida Fish & Wildlife Conservation Commission and Texas Department of Public Safety—both participants in the federal 287(g) program that deputizes local officers for immigration enforcement. Some Florida searches explicitly referenced "I.C.E." in their descriptions. Meanwhile, Cleveland residents were told immigration searches "couldn't happen" on their city's cameras.

City Points Fingers at Vendor Configuration Error

Officials claim fire department drones were mistakenly classified as searchable devices in Flock's national network.

Cleveland now argues these weren't actual license plate searches but a Flock configuration mistake that temporarily pulled fire and EMS drones into the national search network. Public Safety spokesperson Jamil Hairston called it "a simple mix-up on behalf of Flock" and insisted "unequivocally" that no resident license plate data was exposed. Notably, Flock Safety hasn't publicly confirmed this explanation, leaving the city's technical defense hanging like a software update that never downloads.

Pattern Emerges Across Ohio Cities

Shaker Heights and Dayton documented thousands of immigration searches before policy changes and shutdowns.

Cleveland's controversy isn't happening in isolation. Shaker Heights discovered hundreds of immigration-related queries after activists obtained records—turns out the city had never activated its immigration filter. Dayton found approximately 7,100 immigration searches and shut down its entire Flock system indefinitely. The pattern suggests these “safeguards” work about as well as social media privacy settings: theoretically protective, practically porous.

Contract Renewal Faces Council Scrutiny

Activists and some council members question whether technical fixes can address structural surveillance concerns.

Activist Bryn Adams of the “Flock No” coalition expressed skepticism about the city's drone explanation: “I don't even know if I follow that explanation, let alone buy it.” With Cleveland's Flock contract expiring June 28, Mayor Bibb has opted to send renewal to City Council rather than approve it administratively. The decision will test whether elected officials prioritize crime-fighting technology or address growing concerns that vendor-managed filters can't reliably prevent federal immigration enforcement from accessing your neighborhood's driving patterns.
